PIONEER WASHER.
E. G. BOLTER,
AGENT FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

THIS CELEBRATED WASHING MACHINE IS now for the first time introduced to the Oregon public. It is unrivalled for its simplicity, durability and the rapidity and ease of its action Washing the dirtiest clothes perfectly clean in from five to ten minutes, with but slight labor and lasting with proper care, for ten years. The wear and tear of clothing in washing by this machine is vastly less than by any other known process of washing It does its work by a reverse motion in forcing the water through the clothes

It having a tight cover, the steam thus assists materially in cleaning the clothes, and also avoids the inhaling of steam from hot suds

This Machine captured the Special Premium at the California State Fair, and all that have used it pronounce it an invaluable adjunct to all housekeepers and families and washing men and washing women

It has been extensively introduced throughout the State of California, and receives the universal commendation of all who have used it

THE COUNTY RIGHTS, now unsold, will be sold at a bargain if applied for soon

Will make Two Trips per Week to the CITY OF ASTORIA!
Carrying Passengers at $10, the Round Trip, (Meals Included.)

The Boat leaves Portland Wednesdays and Saturdays at 7 A M Returning leaves Astoria Thursdays and Mondays at 6 o clock A M

Every person purchasing a Passenger Ticket will be presented with one of 800 Prize Tickets, to be drawn on the 1ST DAY OF AUGUST, 1867 for the following Prizes:

Steamer U S GRANT, to be divided into 4 shares;
ONE BLOCK OF LOTS IN EAST PORTLAND, divided into 8 shares, or one lot to the share, viz lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, Block 17, opposite the "New Columbian" Hotel, and at the terminus of the proposed Suspension Bridge
ONE GOLD WATCH, worth $100;
150 CORDS DRY FIR WOOD, in 8 shares to be placed on the Brooklyn Wharf

The Steamer is 54 tons burthen, 52 horse-power engine, propeller-wheel, draft of water 5 feet She is being thoroughly refitted and refurnished as a Passenger Boat The Boat will be delivered in perfect order, free from all incumbrance, and Warranty Deeds made for the real estate to the persons drawing the same Tickets can be had of C P FERRY, in Portland, after the money will be left on deposit till the prizes are drawn and delivered.

Any person having a claim against me, and wishing a ticket, can get an order for one by calling on me on board the boat The person drawing the gold watch can have $100 in gold coin, if preferred

C P FERRY, Broker, R J LADD, ex Sheriff, AL ZEIBER U S Marshal, and C S. SILVER Merchant, of Portland are the Committee and Judges to direct the Drawing of Prizes The Prizes will be drawn before the 1st of August, if all the tickets are taken before that time

The above liberal offer is made to the traveling public to enable the subscriber to pay his debts, and not with any reference to speculation, as all the property is valued at much less than its cost, (the Steamer alone having cost $15,000), and the price for carrying passengers to Astoria being much less than the usual fare

General Grant's Position

[Correspondent of the N Y Times, August 19th.]

WASHINGTON, Aug 17th.

As studious attempts are now being made to place General Grant in a false position before the country because of his temporary acceptance of the office of Secretary of War, and inasmuch as certain journals are demanding official evidence of the statements that General Grant heartily coincides with the policy of Congress, the following facts assume unusual interest In addition to these official papers, some of which have been printed heretofore, it will be remembered that just before the adjournment of Congress in July General Grant was twice examined before the Judiciary Committee, and sufficient of his testimony became public to satisfy the most radical members of the House, including Speaker Colfax John Covode, Williams, of Pennsylvania, and others, that General Grant's sympathies have been decidedly with the reconstruction policy of Congress, especially since it has had a policy — Many people forget the highly important fact that General Grant a position, purely a military one, has given him no opportunity for the free expression of his views on political questions To have made such opportunities would have been an infraction of that very discipline which he is bound by army regulations to inculcate among his subordinates So far as General Grant has had occasion to speak or act, the record will show that it is on the right side When his recent testimony before the Judiciary Committee, in which his views were asked for and expressed, is published, his position will be doubted by none

On the 6th of May, 1867, General Grant wrote General Schofield as follows regarding his order on registration.

WASHINGTON, May 6, 1867.

Brevet Major General J M Schofield, Commanding First District Your letter of the 22d of April, inclosing copy of regulations for the registration of voters in your command, was received during my absence from the city, and, either from my neglect or that of some one else, I have only just read them The order is without number and without date, from which I infer you are waiting to hear whether there are any suggestions to offer before publishing it I hasten, therefore, at this apparently late day to reply

The order seems to me to meet every point and to be good I asked the Secretary of War to know if he had any suggestions to offer He said that he had read the order and found nothing to suggest in relation to it

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
U S GRANT, General.

As conclusive evidence of General Grant's interpretation of the Reconstruction Acts of Congress, long before Stanbery pronounced upon them, witness the following correspondence between General Pope and himself, never heretofore printed in full

HEADQUARTERS THIRD MILITARY DIST
General U S Grant, General in Chief United States Army I have the honor to transmit inclosed a copy of an order which it is my purpose to publish as soon as I have ascertained from Provisional Governor Jenkins whether, at the time he issued his address to the people of this State, he had seen or had knowledge of my Order No 1.

The course of Governor Jenkins is disapproved and deprecated by every man in the State who favors reconstruction It is doing great injury by keeping the people disturbed and uncertain what to do, and in arresting the general movement which was going on for active participation in re establishing the State Government In addition to this, I am mainly concered in the total neglect of his duties and the embarrassment in the execution of the laws and maintenance of good order arising from the fact that there is no Lieutenant Governor and no one in the State who can act for him

Already it has been necessary to interfere with the military authority to arrest the execution of a man who was recommended to Executive clemency by both Judge and jury, but who would inevitably have been hanged because the Provisional Governor had absented himself and was not present to perform his duties

Provisional Governor Jenkins' course in attempting to make Georgia a party to a suit without authority of law and without the consent of either Legislature or people, is creating great dissatisfaction, and is embarrassing me very much in the performance of my duty His address to the people of this State, advising them to take no action under the late Acts of Congress, and denouncing those Acts in a manner to excite ill feeling, if not actual disturbance in their execution, is a positive violation of my Order No 1, and if not promptly noticed will render that order null and of no effect, and at once array the whole army of State officials against the execution of those Acts

The ill effects of permitting the whole power of the provisional State Government, through all its civil departments and in all its ramifications, to be used to frustrate the acts of Congress and to keep up the disturbed condition of the public mind, cannot be overstated No reconstruction is possible, and it will be next to impossible to secure faithful administration of the laws while such influences are allowed to go on unchecked, unless the entire civil government is overthrown and the military substituted I deem it of the last importance to arrest it now, in the person of Provisional Governor Jenkins If he is permitted to set authority at defiance, it will be useless to notice such offences committed by the minor officers

I shall await until the receipt of this letter and order is acknowledged, which I request may be done by telegraph, when, if I am not restrained, I will then publish and execute the order

I am, General, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
JOHN POPE,
Brevet Major General Commander.

[Indorsement of the foregoing]

Respectfully forwarded to the Secretary of War for his information The telegraphic dispatch herein inclosed shows that Governor Jenkins, of Georgia, has given such pledges to the commander of the Third District as to induce him to withhold, for the present, his order suspending the Governor

The conduct of Governor Jenkins demonstrates, however, how possible it is for discontented civil officers of the reconstructed States to defeat the laws of Congress if the power does not exist with the district commanders to suspend the functions for cause in some way I seems clear to me that the power is given in the bill 'for the more efficient government of the rebel States," to use or not at the pleasure of district commanders, the provisional machinery set up without the authority of Congress in the States to which the Reconstruction Act applies There being doubt, however, on this point I would respectfully ask an early opinion on the subject.

If the power of removal does not exist with district commanders, then it will become necessary for them to take refuge under that section of the bill which authorizes military commissions U S GRANT General

When General Pope received the Attorney General's opinion on the Reconstruction Act the following correspondence occurred

[Telegram] cipher—Received 2 P M]

ATLANTA (Ga) June 27, 1867

General U S Grant, commanding Armies United States Day before yesterday I received a copy of the opinion of the Attorney General on registration, sent me for my information through the Assistant Adjutant General, by order of the President

Ten days ago I had made and published instructions to the Registers which will have to be dropped if the Attorney General's opinion is enforced The opinion, sent me by the President's order, does not seem to be an order to me on the subject but as there may be room for doubt, I ask that I be informed by telegraph whether or not I am ordered by the President to conform my action to the Attorney General's opinion I stand ready to obey the President's orders on the subject, but I wrote you fully on the subject yesterday the probable result of enforcing the Attorney General's opinion in this district, inclosing also copies of my orders and instructions about registration

Please answer by telegram as soon as possible, as it is manifest that there should be no delay in my being informed of the President's purpose.

JOHN P POPE,
Major General Commanding

GENERAL GRANT'S REPLY

[By telegraph in cipher]

WASHINGTON, June 28, 1867.

Major General J Pope, Atlanta (Ga) Your dispatch of yesterday received. Enforce your own construction of the Military bill until ordered to do otherwise The opinion of the Attorney General has not been distributed to district commanders in any language and manner entitling it to the force of an order, nor can I suppose that the President intended it to have such force

U S GRANT, General

When General Orders issued his circular of instructions to his Boards of Registration, paragraph four of which declared that the Registrar must admit all who were willing to take the oath, General Grant wrote him as follows

WASHINGTON, June 23, 1867

Brevet Major General E O C Ord, commanding Fourth District Copy of your final instructions to Boards of Registration of June 10, 1867, is just received.

I entirely dissent from the views contained in paragraph four. Your view as to the duty of Registers to register every man who will take the required oath, though they may know the applicant perjures himself, is sustained by the views of the Attorney General. My opinion is that it is the duty of the Board of Registration to see, so far as it lies in their power, that no unauthorized person is allowed to register. To secure this end, Registers should be allowed to administer oaths and examine witnesses The law, however, makes "Abolishing" State Governments.

A late speech delivered by George H Pendleton at St. Paul is widely commended by the Democratic press as being instinctive with the spirit of true statesmanship and elevated patriotism. The speech would be more statesmanlike if it were more truthful, and more patriotic if it exhibited less sympathy for the country's enemies Congress is arraigned on the charge of having abolished the governments of ten sovereign States and struck a blow at the very foundation of local liberty. The sort of ability that makes charges like this is manifested every day by the weakest individuals connected with the Copperhead press so that there was no need of a special revelation on this subject from an ex-member of Congress and a badly defeated candidate for the Vice Presidency. The charge that Congress has abolished State governments is one which, as it is more frequently made than any other, so it is if possible, more devoid of truth. Congress has not abolished the government of any State. Eleven States entered into a rebellion against the authority of the Union, abandoned or destroyed their loyal governments and instituted others, which were disloyal to the United States. These disloyal governments were overthrown by the war and others of a loyal character have not since been created and recognized. The States in the first instance overturned the those lodal governments which were recognized by the Government of the Union, and the disloyal and illegal governments that succeeded them were destroyed by our arms. To destroy them was the object for which the war was waged. The people of the eleven States therefore abolished their original and lawful State governments, and but one of them has been restored. The rest of them will be restored whenever the people of the ten ex States form such governments as Congress is willing to recognize, and not sooner. Those communities are entirely responsible for their present condition. Had they not destroyed their governments they would not now be subject in this matter to the control of Congress. As regards the annihilation of local liberty by the acts of the legislative branch of the Government, it is tolerably clear that in the ten rebel States there is at this time quite as much personal and political freedom as there was under the rule of Davis' military despotism. We never heard that a Democrat ever apprehended any danger to liberty in the South from the remorseless tyranny which was established and maintained by the rebel leaders for the space of nearly five years.

County Fairs.

Unusual interest is being manifested this year in the matter of County Agricultural Fairs. Extensive preparations are being made in several counties to hold Fairs which shall exceed in interest and importance any of a similar kind which have ever been held. The Washington county Fair will commence on the 24th inst., and the earnestness which has characterized the preparations for it warrants the belief that it will be a credit to the people of the county. The Wasco county Fair will be held on the 25th, 27th and 28th days of the present month. The Dalles paper says that the people from all parts of the county and from the opposite side of the river in Washington Territory have expressed an intention to be present, and everything looks highly favorable to the success of the effort. The Linn county Fair will commence on the 30th inst., and continue four days. We have before us the premium list of the Society, a pamphlet of fifteen pages. In the number and value of the premiums offered, this Society appears to take the lead of any other county association, and to lead almost competes with the State Fair itself. For Linn, being among the greatest of our agricultural counties, is able to get up a Fair as generous and extensive as her own capabilities of production. The interest which is taken in these County Societies is a hopeful sign of the progress of the State in the development of its latent wealth. Facts like this show that our people are building on the sure basis of permanent prosperity.

UNGRATEFUL.—The Chicago Tribune, in a recent issue, strongly urged Andrew Johnson to resign the Presidency, saying he has "furnished capital for the Radical party, and his unpopularity will give to the ruling party a vantage ground in the next Presidential campaign should he continue in office." It is the fate of all traitors to be cast aside by the interest for which they sacrificed their honor.

The publication of the American Flag newspaper at San Francisco having been relinquished by D. O. McCarthy, the employes of the office have formed a joint stock company and will continue the paper.

A late Eastern paper says that M. T. Tuthill, late of the Utica, N. Y., Herald, was a passenger to California by the steamer of the 20th August, to assume editorial charge of the Sacramento Union.

GREELEY'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY.—The New York correspondent of the Sacramento Union, under date of August 10th, speaks of the first installment of the life Greeley is writing of himself for Bonner as follows:

The Ledger of this week contains the opening number of Greeley's autobiography, entitled, "Recollections of a Busy Life." These recollections begin among the Scotch-Irish, of Ulster, in the reign of reign of James I., which proves that the author has a better memory than most men living. But this part of the sketch we must set down to a little pride of ancestry on the part of Greeley—and a very discriminating pride it is, too. He presents the early history of the colony in which his maternal ancestry lived, embellishing the narrative with a singularly uninteresting wood cut of the house in which "Greeley's Mother was Married," but makes no allusion to his father—though he may have reserved his paternal lineage for another chapter. Greeley's mother's grandfather, we are told, was a John Woodburn, one of the Scotch-Irish colonists who came from Londonderry in 1718 and founded the settlement of that name in New Hampshire. The tract of land allotted to him in 1721 in the new colony was managed as a farm until his death, and was transmitted to his son, in whose possession it still remains. The opening passages of the autobiography relate to some of the prominent men and incidents of the colonial times, one of whom, a Presbyterian preacher, was a strict vegetarian, and, nearly fainted over his dish of greens in detecting the flavor of meat, from which the water had accidently boiled over into his kettle. (Did Greeley get his first ideas of "sawdust puddings" from this source?) The moral to be drawn from the "Recollections," so far as they have appeared, is that the editor of the Tribune, like most other men, is not insensible to the honor and advantages of having descended from good stock, with all his public and private teachings of the equality and universal brotherhood of man and his affected contempt of birth and family inheritances He promises to make an interesting volume, nevertheless, even though he should not steer quite clear of the errors on which Benton and Scott and other great Americans have wrecked themselves in their autobiographies.

A Kansas paper reports that an old gentleman in Illinois, who has recently been buying cattle in Texas, says that he became acquainted with a man in central Texas, who in conversation told him that Quantrell was still living in that State He said that he was a secessionist during the war, but generally kept quiet, and he wanted to still live in peace with his neighbors, and would not, therefore, tell where Quantrell is, but said he could take him where he was living in three days' ride.

An eastern Copperhead paper calls Sheridan an "Irish blackguard"—a convincing proof of that affection for the soldiers which the conservatives affect. That every conservative should abuse Sheridan is natural, but we do not see why they should indulge in a contemptible fling at the Irish in that connection.

Temperance Reform

It is apparent on every hand that the liquor question is becoming a formidable one in our politics In many of the States a contest is going on between the advocates of prohibition and of license, which is growing quite as warm as were similar contests years ago. In some of the Eastern States the prohibitionists have carried the day and are making a show of enforcing the anti-liquor law with rigorous severity In Massachusetts prohibition is nominally in force; but experience shows that drunkenness is not at all abated thereby A Boston paper says that "there has been no diminution of arrests for intoxication since the bar rooms were closed," and it is certain that the heavy excise on spirits has not had the smallest effect in any part of the country preventing drunkenness. During the past twelvemonth the enormous number of 42,000 persons were arrested in New York City for being "drunk and disorderly,"—a greater number than ever before. The agitation of the subject and the demand for stringent prohibition are introducing new questions into State and even National politics, and leading in some cases to the formation of political parties with special reference to this question. A secret order has been instituted in Massachusetts to fight for repeal, and immense numbers of voters of both political parties have joined it. In Maine, as we see by New England papers, the canvass prior to the late election was conducted more with reference to this question than anything else. The Chicago Tribune says that in Wisconsin great numbers of people are organizing under a pledge to oppose a prohibitory law and stringent Sunday legislation, and report says that the Germans of California voted unitedly with the Democratic party in the late election for the same reason. From these facts it will be seen that this question is becoming one of much political importance, and it is not improbable that it will have a great influence on the future status of political parties.

Every good citizen must deplore drunkenness as a great evil and desire to do all he can to check it But are prohibitory laws the best remedy? Rather does not experience show that drunkenness is quite as common after the enactment of prohibitory laws as before? Compare the results of attempted prohibition in our own country with the state of things existing at Paris during the carnival times of the great Exposition, as related by an eye witness: "Neatness, order, decency are everywhere, and if there is anything else in Paris, it does not make its appearance in public. People come out by the hundred thousands—all the liquor shops of Paris are open, there is no Maine Law; the supply of liquor is unlimited, and not one person is seen drunk." These are facts which are well worth studying. It is impossible by any sort of legislation to keep liquor out of the hands of those who have an appetite for it, and every additional statute on the subject will only lead to new methods of evasion.

We find this subject discussed in a late able article in a California journal, a portion of which we here append. The positions taken are, in the main, so fair and well-considered, and the spirit of the article throughout is so excellent as to merit general attention:

The question, like all others, has two sides. We may differ with the reformers as to the details of their plan for accomplishing the object they have in view, but our sympathies and those of every well-wisher of society and the government of our country must necessarily be in favor of any judicious movement to discourage the improper use of intoxicating liquors by the people. We cannot approve all that is done by the over-zealous advocates of temperance in the Eastern States, by way of severe legislative enactments. The right to do this may well be questioned as an infringement upon man's natural right, and it is but reasonable that the prohibitionists should meet with stout resistance from the free masses. Many thousands who desire to see the evils of intemperance checked, and if possible wholly removed, will array themselves politically against the reformation merely because of the infringement, whether fancied or real, of their supposed natural rights. It is the misfortune of the human mind that its knowledge is not perfect, and as a consequence, it inaugurates social reforms by the choice of improper or inadequate means to secure immediate success. Those persons who commence the agitation for reform, having made the subject a specialty and arrived at their conclusion as to the course to be pursued to effect it, urge measures in the beginning which ought to come up later in the controversy, forgetting that the public with whom they have to deal have not, like themselves, had the subject under consideration and decided upon their course of action. Hence they present the question to the public wrong and foremost, by proposing legislative action to begin with, instead of first convincing the public that such legislation is necessary and appropriate. But the end in view is ultimately secured, and the attention of the public could not have been drawn to the question in any better way, than by first alarming it with a threatened legislative infringment of individual rights. Public attention being secured by whatever means, discussion follows until the subject is thoroughly understood, and public opinion set, then upon a proper policy for adoption to secure the results desired. In this country, public opinion when formed is enacted into laws by the representatives of the people. All laws enacted that do not represent public opinion are premature and inoperative, because not sustained and approved by the public. To secure that approval and efficacy, it is necessary to first convince the public mind of the good to result to society from such a law. The difficulty of enforcing the prohibitory laws enacted in the Eastern States arises from the fact, that public opinion there is not yet educated, up to the approval of such legislation, nor even convinced of the necessity of any prohibitory legislation whatever.

There are many difficulties presented to the mind in considering this temperance question. Intemperance is admitted on all hands to be a great social evil, and all good men desire to see it abated, and readily lend an ear to propositions to effect it. A large portion of the human family seem incapable of resisting the temptation to indulge in stimulants, even while their judgment condemns their use. Upon such persons some restraint should be imposed, not only for their own good, but for that of society, of which they form a part. It is because of its injurious effect upon society and the public welfare that those who are free from intemperate habits, have a right to interpose to correct the evils flowing from intemperance. But in protecting the rights of society from the evil complained of, it is very important that the rights of individual members of society are not restricted, beyond what is necessary to secure the end desired. It is the abuse of the individual right to use liquor that must be prevented by legislation, and not the use of it. Because many cannot use liquors in moderation, others do not derive the right from that fact, to declare by law that those who can do so shall not be allowed to, yet the Maine Liquor Law denies to all alike the use of stimulating beverages. Here lies the error Yet we cannot indicate a sure and positive remedy for the evil We can only resort to general principles for our guide Public opinion must be first educated by discussion, to a proper understanding of the whole subject. We believe that the appetite for liquors is created in a great measure by the use of too much stimulating food. We all know that the appetite grows by what it feeds upon, that is, that an appetite for almost anything may be acquired by cultivation. Is it not reasonable to presume that the use of stimulative food begets an appetite for strong drink? Believing this to be so, we consider it quite as essential to teach the necessity of temperance in all things as in the use of intoxicating liquors. Indeed, if we could regulate the food of the people, we would guaranty their temperance in the use of liquors. Nor do we believe that the evils of temperance can be avoided in any other way than by reforming the appetite. It is apparent that either the appetite for liquor or the means of gratifying it must be destroyed The appetite we believe to be a cultivated one, and may be so far overcome by proper training as to be easily governed by individuals The right to use liquor, or any other thing, so as not to injure the rights of others, is one of the inherent rights of man, and cannot be interfered with by legislation

How much space a fashionable lady requires to pack away her garments for a summer tour to the watering places has never been satisfactorily determined. The Boston Traveler tells of a young lady who arrived in that city from New York recently, on her way, probably, to the White Mountains, who had seven large trunks and two good boxes, in addition to her reticule, parasol, etc. She occupied a seat all alone in one of the stage coaches during her trip across the city, and the rack and roof of the coach were completely filled with her paraphernalia.

KENTUCKY.—Kentucky, says the Chicago Post, is likely to become the "Paradise Regained" of unrepentant rebels. To have worn the Federal uniform in the late war is already looked upon as such an unpardonable offense that many weak-kneed Unionists who went office are hiding their war garments, and coming out in public cards, denying or explaining their connection with the Union army. Quartermasters, who subsequently became sutlers or contractors, find no difficulty in so deluding their positions as to satisfy their rebel constituents that they only accepted them for the purpose of "spoiling the Egyptians," and that they were all the time as good Confederates as any that wore the gray, but the ex soldiers who are not ashamed of the "blue" are leaving the State in large numbers, and their places are being rapidly filled by disfranchised rebels from other States

LUMP OF SNAKES.—A singular instance is thus told by the Columbia (Ohio) Statesman:

Dunlay Gray, of this county, had a mare, on whose side was a large lump about the size of a man's head A short time since he concluded to have it opened, with a view to its removal, and asked Dr F. C Brown to perform the operation, which he did. The protuberance being opened was found to contain four black snakes about a foot long, all alive and with white heads A most singular and to us unaccountable circumstance.

A POWERFUL RIVAL.—There is a new patent Sewing Machine, (called the Star Shuttle,) manufactured in Cleveland, Ohio, by W G Wilson & Co., and sold for Twenty Dollars, that makes the Lock Stitch similar to Wheeler & Wilson, and other first-class machines. The manufacturers claim that it is equal in size, finish, and workmanship, to any other first-class machine, besides being able to do the same range of work.

THE FAVORABLE TIME HAS ARRIVED.—Those now goods have arrived at KOHN & FICHEL'S and are now open to inspection. We can assure the ladies that they can now find on KOHN & FICHEL'S counters, the investment, cheapest and most desirable dress goods—from cotton to the richest and most costly fabrics—that have been brought to Portland since the war began. NOW IS THE TIME for housewives to buy now supplies of cotton goods, prices are reduced so much as to astonish everybody. In the latest styles of business suits and FASHIONABLE CLOTHING, Kohn & Fichel are now able to eclipse any house in this city, and the goods are of the very best quality and make There never was such a chance in Portland for BARGAINS IN FAVOR OF THE BUYER

Buchtel's Photograph Gallery is the only establishment in Oregon that is thoroughly prepared to do all the different styles of work in the art Photographs from card to life size The new cabinet cards, &c., &c Small pictures enlarged (retouched in India ink—painted in water-colors or oil by Mrs. S J. Rumsey. Pictures that are fading can be reproduced in this way All negatives taken in this gallery will be carefully preserved, and additional copies had I have now on hand a very large collection of negatives, the names of which are recorded alphabetically in a book for that purpose that can be seen in the reception room

THERE IS NO EXCUSE for those who drag their weary and disordered bodies into our company, when a few doses of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA would cleanse their murky blood and restore their health and vigor Ye muddy victims of bilious disease, have some regard for your neighbors, if not for yourselves.

THE GRAND LODGE OF GOOD TEMPLARS.—The Salem Chronicle, edited by Bro J H Upton, attacks the order of Good Templars through the Grand Lodge, late in session in this city It charges that body with the grave crime of prostituting itself to politics and specifies as follows:

"Twelve officers were elected, not one of whom, so far as we can ascertain, but was a Radical in politics Again Three hundred dollars in cash was appropriated for the benefit of the Corvallis Occident, a Radical newspaper."

Before convicting the Grand Lodge on this charge, and before we enter the arena of deadly strife against it, we are curious to learn whether there were twelve persons or any considerable fraction of twelve persons, of any other than Radical politics, who were members of the Grand Lodge and eligible to its offices. If not, we shall hesitate about crushing the concern And would Bro. Upton be kind enough to cite the name of any newspaper of other than Radical politics, which is apilin' to undertake the championship of the order? If he can't do that, it may be still an open question whether the Gazette was not selected as a sort of "Hopkins' choice" and without much regard to the color of its political opinions. If it be really true, after all, that the Good Templars are all Radicals and that they elect Radicals to office, and if, still further, it be true that a sprinkling of members and officers of other colors, would improve the tone of the institution, then we are willing to join with Bro Upton, "or any other man," in the endeavor to get a few persons of said other colors into the order.

U S CIRCUIT COURT DECREE J —In this court, yesterday the following order was entered:

In the matter of the appointment of Commissioners to take oaths, etc., under the Bankrupt Act:

Whereas, An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States, approved March 6th, 1867, provides that certain oaths to be taken in proceedings in bankruptcy may be administered by Commissioners of the U S Circuit Court, and whereas, on account of the extent of the District of Oregon the present provision of law for taking such oaths is inadequate and inconvenient, it is ordered that, Wm Hoffman of Jacksonville, Jas. Walton of Roseburg, D M Risdon of Eugene City, T. B. Odeneal of Corvallis, P L Spalding of Astoria, O D Denny of Dalles City Lucien Starks of Umatilla, Fred Adams of Canyon City, C. M Foster of Baker county, M. Baker of Union county, Frank Dalton of Linn county and J. L. Collins of Dallas, Polk county, be, and they are hereby appointed Commissioners of the U. S. Circuit Court for the District of Oregon, to take all such oaths as Commissioners may take under the above mentioned act, or under any act of Congress having relation to the duties and powers of such Commissioners.

THE GAME AT VANCOUVER —The second game in the match between the First Nines of the Occidentals and the Shermans, both of Vancouver, was played on Friday, the 13th. The following is the score:

Shermans	Runs.	Outs	Occidentals	Runs	Outs.
Brown, 2d base	3	0	Patrain, c	5	2
McGill, s.	3	6	Lyon, p	5	3

Kenney, 2d b	3	5	W. Leahy, l. f	6	1
Gibbons, r. f	4	3	Short, r. f	2	5
Total	44	27	Total	38	27

Mr. Fisher, of the Continental Club, acted as umpire. Berling scored for the Shermans and Rascher for the Occidentals. The game occupied three hour's time SHIPMENT.—At sea, on board the schooner Mist, Sept. 9th, in latitude 43° 50' north, and longitude 124° west from Greenwich, (about five miles off Yaquina Bay,) by Rev J. F. Kinsinger, Mr. Lewis T. Thompson and Miss Mie and R. Wright, both of Douglas Co, Oregon. No cards.

The above announcement was sent us by letter from Newport, Yaquina Bay. This is the second affair of the kind, and it strikes us that going to sea on the Mist to escape the pursuit of enraged parents, is in a fair way to become popular with enamored youths and love-sick damsels. "There is a tide in the affairs of men," etc; the tide in the affairs of Captain Hoxie, of the Mist, began to flood when the thought of chartering his vessel for such a purpose was conceived in the brain of that ardent young lover in July. Hereafter, Breina Green is understood to be "five miles off Yaquina Bay," and Captain Hoxie should hit her a potent, before the business interests so much as to call out an opposition line.

LECTURE FOR BENEFIT OF MRS O'CONNOR.—During yesterday, Mr Martin, the Wizard, very generously offered to surrender to Prof. Allsop, the use of Ore Fino Hall in which to deliver his lecture for the benefit of Mrs. T. G. O'Connor His kind offer was, of course, gratefully accepted, and the lecture will be delivered at Ore Fino Hall this evening. The subject, it will be remembered is, "Lima and the Limaians; or the rough log of a voyage between San Blas, Mexico, and Callao de Lima, Peru." It is an interesting subject and Prof Allsop is reputed to be a pleasing and interesting speaker, and the entertainment may, therefore, be counted upon as an excellent one We learn that many of our people have invested very liberally, already, in tickets.

DWELLING HOUSE BURNED —A letter from Tillamook, through a friend at Oregon City, states that, on Friday night, the 6th, the house of Rev. John Howard, of the M E. Church at Tillamook, together with all its contents, was consumed by fire. The family only saved such articles as they had on at the time, and the people there being unable to assist them much, he appeals to the generosity of the public for aid It is a sad case, no doubt, and should meet with a prompt and liberal response Anything in the line of clothing, or that can be used in the family, will be very acceptable Send in care of Eberding & Boise, by schooner Champion, which will be at Portland about the 20th. The origin of the fire is totally a mystery.

FURLOUGH.—Lt. Jas. A. Rothermel, U S A., arrived here a few days since from the east and left yesterday under orders to join his company—D, 8th Cavalry—in the field. He will go by way of Camp Watson. Rothermel served in the volunteer army throughout the late war, entering the service from Philadelphia as a captain and soon rising to the rank of Colonel. He had command of a regiment at Memphis, frequently commanded greater forces, was at various times on staff duty with Averill, Grierson, and other cavalry Generals, and went through any number of "tight places." At the close of the war he was appointed for meritorious services, to his present place in the regular army.

RECORDER'S COURT.—In the Recorder's Court yesterday, the following proceedings were had: Edward Chambreau on a charge of assault and battery upon J. J Pratt, was fined $10 and costs J. J. Pratt, on the charge of being drunk and disorderly in the restaurant kept by Chambreau, was fined $5 and costs in default of which he was sent to jail for two days. John Bowry for being drunk and disorderly on the side walk, was sent to jail for two days, in default of a fine. John Roach, convicted on Saturday of stealing money from the till of Jack Allphin's Saloon, was sentenced to thirty days' imprisonment in the county jail.

GAS.—The Victoria people, gas commissioners, are reporting to the newspapers, through which they are carrying on an extended discussion about cheap light, gas light, and "light on the question." Whether gas be cheaper than tallow dips, and whether the gas-makers are gouging the gas-users, are the questions to which the literary light weights of the British "Venice" are bending their intellects. As far as we can see, the argument has thus far only resulted in enveloping the whole matter in darkness. If newspaper gas would only burn, there would be no occasion for complaint about the cost of light in Victoria.

AGRICULTURAL EXPOSITION.—We are informed that the Washington Co. Agricultural Society has offered this year a premium of $200 for the best running horse, and only two dollars and fifty cents for the best Merino buck This strikes us as very decid dly a discrimination against one of the most productive interests of the State. Horses are attractive for the time being, and a "big thing" for a few horse men; but when compared with the wool interest, the difference can scarcely be as two hundred to two and a half Is not a little reform, in these matters, to be desired?

WIZARD MARTIN.—The second entertainment given by this accomplished necromancer at Ore Fine Hall, last evening, was attended by a much larger audience than was the first one. The Professor introduced several new tricks with great success, while those which were repeated from the first evening, seemed to have lost nothing in interest. The hall will be used this evening by Prof Allsop, and to-morrow evening, Mr Martin will resume his interesting entertainments, with a change of programme.

CAME NEAR BEING DROWNED.—A man in a state of stupidity superinduced by dead-shot whiskey, fell off the wharf in rear of the New Columbian Hotel, Sunday night, and but for the help of persons who heard the splash, would have been a drowned rat in about sixty seconds more It is not common for persons of his temperament to take much to water; and it can only be accounted for in his case, on the theory that it was all a mistake.

WASHINGTON GUARD.—This company, at an adjourned meeting last evening, resolved go upon a Target Excursion on the 25th inst, to Hillsboro, at the invitation of the officers of the Washington Co Agricultural Society Of course, as the company will turn out in force, they will have a gay time of it We have no doubt that this excursion will have the effect to considerably increase the number of visitors to the fair, from Portland.

SUPREME COURT.—Chief Justice Shattuck has not been sitting with the justices of the Supreme Court since the middle of last week, having been called home by the sickness of a child A letter from Salem gives information that the docket of appeals from this district was reached on Friday and that on that and the following day three cases were disposed of; but the titles of the cases were not stated

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—The Senator brought down, yesterday, from Oregon City, 480 qr sks flour, 51 bf bbls lard and butter, 241 gunnies oats, 23 boxes eggs, 104 gunnies bacon, 7 sks dried fruit, 2 cases woolen goods, 13 bales do, 2 tons pig iron to Willamette Iron Works and one ton do, to D Monnastes

THE GAME AT HILLSBORO.—The Tiger B B Club at Forest Grove, has sent a challenge to the Spartans of this city to play a game at the fair ground near Hillsboro, on the last day of the Washington county fair The Spartans have accepted.

PIONEERS VS OCCIDENTALS.—The second game in the match pending between the Pioneers of this city and the Occidentals of Vancouver, will be played at Vancouver next Saturday.

THE PACIFICS will meet for practice this day at 3 P. M.

Letter from Ex-Congressman Riddle to Secretary Seward

WASHINGTON Aug. 12, 1867.

Hon. William H. Seward, Secretary of State—Dear Sir I find my name in the public prints in connection with an alleged conspiracy against the President of the United States, and as my supposed part in it grew out of a service with which I was honored by you, I deem it due to myself to submit this statement for your consideration:

I entered upon the investigation of the Surratt case for no other purpose but to faithfully contribute whatever I might to an honest development of the facts of the case for this purpose I sought every source of information and explored every story and rumor that promised the least light on any part of the transaction connected with the murder of the late President which reached me Whatever I found to be true and pertinent I placed in the hands of my associates, who are only responsible for the use made of it on the trial.

Among others, I made inquiries of Sanford Conover concerning certain persons and transactions in Canada and on our northern border having some connection with the case I had never seen him till I met him in jail, and never saw him but twice, and both times at about the commencement of the trial. Some of the information I received from him I found by other tests to be correct, and, as I believe, of considerable value The name of no witness used by the Government, however, was given me by Conover, and I cannot recall any facts given in evidence that were derived from him.

William E. Cleaver was an important witness for the Government on the trial of Payne and others, and the information of the further facts testified to by him at the late trial reached me in a statement of Cleaver's taken by Colonel Conger at the jail. Colonel Conger made the acquaintance of Cleaver in the army, and from sources unknown to me he received an intimation that Cleaver had some knowledge of John Surratt, and visited him at my request This led to an interview between Cleaver and myself in the jail I had then never seen Conover, nor did I ever hear that he had any agency in disclosing to anybody what Cleaver could testify to until Cleaver gave his evidence at the trial. I know nothing of the case, history or character of Conover further than is known to the public. I know nothing whatever of any communication between Ashley and Conover. I knew that a motion for a new trial was pending in Conover's case, which was offeotively resisted by the District Attorney. I never heard that Ashley was interested in procuring a pardon for Conover until I saw the report on Conover's application by the Assistant Attorney General on Saturday; not until then had I seen or heard of the note supposed to have been written by Ashley to Judge Holt and myself. No such note nor any note from Ashley was ever delivered or shown to me by anybody, nor have I, at any time, in any way, received any communication from Ashley in reference to Conover. I desired that he might remain here until the testimony in the Surratt case was closed, and beyond that case he could be of no use to me, nor could he in any way serve any other purpose, object or wish of mine.

On the morning of the 22d of July, Conover's wife called at my office and said she was about to apply to the President for a pardon for her husband, and asked me if, in view of his communications to me, I was disposed to say or write a word in his favor. I told her I would. The information I had received was given freely, fairly and with seeming candor and truthfulness, without condition or stipulation on his part, and without promise or assurance on mine. I thought his services had been of value, and I sat down and wrote the note to the President which appears in Binckley's report. It was written in good faith and is true.

My interview with Mrs. Dunham (Mrs. Conover) took place in the presence and hearing of Gen. Mussey.

With the exception of disclosing the information itself which I derived from Conover, this statement covers all I know of him, and I frankly admit that I am surprised at the use made of my note of the 22d of July, in the communication of the Assistant Attorney General to the President. Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

A. G. RIDDLE.

A newly married couple from New York, who had been visiting some relatives near Fentonville, Michigan, were being driven in to take the cars a few days. When within a short distance of the railroad crossing they discovered the train rapidly approaching. The team was urged forward at a furious rate, and the track nearly reached when the bride became so much alarmed at the almost certain destruction awaiting them, that she sprang from the carriage. The momentum received from the flying team threw her off her feet, and she fell directly across the track, while the ponderous engine was drawing fearfully near. With admirable presence of mind, she, instead of attempting to rise, threw her body around parallel with the track and rolled off to one side, and safely rolled out of the way. Picking herself up, she started for the depot, some thirty rods distant, and arrived there in time to take the train.

A NATIONAL HORSE FAIR AT WASHINGTON.—A grand National Agricultural Exhibition and Horse Fair is to be held at the National Race Course, near Washington, commencing the 28th of October. Premium lists in money, and medals to the amount of $20,000 will be awarded. The managers, who represent both Northern and Southern States, are now making arrangements to secure the attendance of most of the celebrated trotting and running horses now on the turf, and are preparing sheds for the display of agricultural implements and mechanism.

THOUSANDS did not go to the polls on election day in California, but the people of Oregon are making good use of H. M. Newhall's bargains at Harman Bros., corner of Front and Morrison streets Portland.

PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER.

Travelers are always liable to sudden attacks of dysentery and cholera morbus, and those occurring when absent from home are very unpleasant. PERRY DA VIS VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER may always be relied upon in such cases As soon as you feel the symptoms, take one teaspoonful in a gill of new milk and sweetene, and a gill of hot water. Stir well together and drink hot Repeat the dose every hour until relieved If the pains be severe, bathe the bowels and back with the medicine, clear.

Fishermen, so often exposed to hurts by having their skin pierced with hooks and fins of fish, can be much relieved by bathing with a little Pain Killer as soon as the accident occurs; in this way the anguish is soon stayed; bathe as often as once in five minutes, say three or four times, and you will seldom have any trouble Sold by dealers everywhere

Hon Schuyler Colfax.

The Ladies' Repository for September contains an article on Hon. Schuyler Colfax, from which we quote liberally, as it gives, on the whole, the best estimate of the man we have seen:

I hate such
The dumb man through it see him, and the blind
To hear him speak;
and the common mass
A shower, and Hammer with their upand shouts
Col. A 2, 8c 1

"My son," said a solicitous father, "never touch politics—they are demoralizing." Most public men, if they ever received such advice, have unfortunately proved a sadly disobedient race. The people, however, must have public servants and are generously prompt to honor those who, in the midst of official temptation, are saved by grace from the spiritual wickedness so common in high places. Impregnable virtue in secular strife is far nobler than the innocence of monastity within a cloister.

We know of one sturdy soul who, when both young and fatherless, boldly "touched politics," and yet has grown steadily in Christian manhood even in that city whose proverbial corruption compels "the man in the moon to hold his nose when passing over it." He is in several senses representative. Self-made, from among the people, clear among representatives of the people, widely known and popular among the people, embodying the deepening political faith of the people, reflecting the moral sense of the best people, he, by faithful public service, a spotless life, his Christian walk and declared allegiance to God, is an example to the young and deserving of confidence in every Repository circle.

The man whose first Congressional majority is just "Seventeen Hundred and Seventy six," has, of course, a dash of Revolutionary blood in his veins. Tracing the patriotic lineage, we find the paternal grandmother a cousin to Major General Philip Schuyler, and a grandfather, Captain Colfax, commanding General Washington's bodyguard. With such antecedents, Dame History was certainly not surprised when the grandson dedicated himself to Freedom, and when she found him enjoying the loving confidence of that other man of the people, Lincoln, the Great Emancipator and "second Washington."

After the manner of stand biographers, we record the life begun in New York city, March 23, 1823, a few months after his father's death. When ten years old, his mother re-married, becoming the "Mrs. Matthews" of modern Washington receptions. With this event the boy's school-life closed, but the county term seems to have been well improved, for "Schuyler always stood at the head of his class." The next three years were spent in the step-father's store. In 1836 the family, taking a hint from the shadows of morning, came westward, crossed Michigan in a wagon containing all their worldly goods, and settled at New Carlisle, St. Joseph county, Indiana. That region was then a wilderness, but thrift, fertility, and blessing have since made it a garden of plenty. Here, for thirty-one years, has pure Western home-life smiled upon and fostered him whose only possible complaint is the expatriating majorities which banish him so repeatedly East to Washington.

In 1841 Mr. Matthews, elected County Auditor, moved to South Bend. Schuyler, deputy auditor at eighteen, made such studious use of leisure that he soon became undisputed authority on precedents, usage, and State law affecting auditorial duty. Among the inevitable schemes of American village life, that of "a debating society" arose in 1843 at South Bend. In maturing outlines somebody's prophetic soul caught the inspiration of a most State Legislature. The ayes had it, whereupon Mr. Defrees, now Congressional printer, was made "Mr. Speaker," and the future Speaker of "The Historic Congress" found himself "the honorable gentleman from Newton," now a county in his present Congressional district. Thus our fledging orators debated not bankrupcy distinctions, but "bills," and all proceedings were conducted according to strict parliamentary rules, which doubtless gave rural members much perplexing study; yet "Newton county" faltered not. Two following years' service at Indianapolis as Senate reporter for the State Journal gave Mr. Colfax a rarely clear solution of the perplexities of parliamentary usage, he little dreaming that the knowledge and skill thus obtained would later set boundaries to Congressional debate and grandly historic legislation.

Like rays of Empire's star, white lines of covered wagons followed westward. Immigrants poured in. Franklin thrift longed for Franklin's printing press; so the reporter became an editor, founding in 1845 the St. Joseph Valley Register. Bringing to his new position the available capital of brain, industry, tact, and conscience, he for eighteen years performed an editor's wearing toil. From first to last, he was true to the people he sought to educate, as well when the majority opposed his political faith as when the trusty, hopeful, tireless editor enjoyed the benefits of changed election returns.

Mr. Colfax's first more public service began in 1848, as member and Secretary of the Whig Convention which nominated General Taylor for President. In 1850 he was an active member of the Convention which framed the present Constitution of Indiana. Here he persistently opposed the unmanly clause prohibiting free colored men from entering the State. This clause, submitted separately to the people, was indorsed by majorities of eight thousand in his district and ninety thousand in the State, yet, where a mere political trimmer would have waived the personal issue, he like a man openly voted with the minority, though he was at the time a candidate for Congress. In 1852, unanimously nominated from the Ninth District of Indiana, he made a joint canvass with his opponent, the then incumbent, who reobtained his seat by only two hundred and sixteen majority. Like his friend Mr. Lincoln from the Douglas debate, he emerged in a shining, prophetic minority, with a fund of popular confidence which later resulted in better things. Subsequent district and Congressional popularity is shown by eight unanimous nominations and seven continuous elections, in a "doubtful district," to the House, which has thrice, by more than the party majority, elevated him to the Speakership. No other Northern man has such a gratifying record. His membership has been in the Thirty-Fourth and all later Congresses, and his Speakership in the Thirty-Eighth, Thirty-Ninth, and Fortieth.

His success, so dangerous to most men in Church or State, spoiled him? Even opponents will vote "no" in this delicate test, as they, in several instances, have already pronounced. At the close of the first session of the Thirty-Ninth Congress an enthusiastic opposition member, mounting a desk, shouted, "Three cheers for our noble Speaker!" and the responsive "shower and thunder" came with a will. In 1860 he defeated his competitor, who in 1852 took the stump in his favor. His present Speakership was indorsed by the unexpected votes of three members elected to Congress on opposition tickets. This favor by opponents is won by his open, manly tactics during a canvass where all his procedures are above even the reproach of enemies. In debate he, always avoiding personalities, confines himself to vital issues and the merits of all pending questions. Prosperity has not injured Mr. Colfax, for the simple reason that pure principles and worthy aims constitute the soul of his success. Before us is a letter read to the Convention which last nominated him. Urging the unselfish point that the Union cause was of paramount importance, he expresses unwillingness that his name should "embarrass the Convention for an instant, if even a small minority prefer some other standard-bearer." Aspirants usually say thus when they are certain of success or of defeat; but Mr. Colfax is not among those aspirants to position who as is amply proven by his bearing during the war. At a time when his re-election pended, disaster had sapped the enthusiasm of army and people. Taking the district rostrum, he passed rapidly around among his people like a military evangel, pleading for freedom, for the country, and for the army, forgetful of self and solicitous only to recruit our thinned lines of battle. Friends, believing that his re-election was more valuable to the cause than a few Indiana volunteers could be to the army, almost sharply remonstrated against a course which, they thought, would secure his undeserved defeat. The characteristic reply, unstudied for effect, because made in private, was that he preferred that he, not our brave soldiers, should be in the minority, and that recruiting should go briskly and immediately forward.

"... shun it but to make it more,"

A secular journal of influence lately pronounced Mr. Colfax "the most popular among the people." Better even than this, he deserves it; for we believe that he would sooner sacrifice life than principle. Public eclat sometimes inspires martyrdom, but we suspect that, for the sake of such good company, he would quietly pass into exile with the Truth, regretting only her and eclipse.

Dr. Olin once said to his students, "He who nourishes in secret an ardent love of truth, of justice, of mercy, and of purity, * * is treasuring up in his noble bosom the resources of a moral and intellectual power, which, in some great day of crisis or duty, will come forth in the forms of overbearing eloquence or influence, under which persecuted innocence or the cause of truth or patriotism will delight to take shelter. * * but religion is their only sure and proper source."

To Schuyler Colfax the rebellion brought that "great day of crisis and duty," and the anointing consciousness of Divine agency seems to pervade all his since recorded words and acts. To the Thirty-Eighth Congress he said "I invoke you to remember that sacred truth, which all history verifies, that 'they who rule not in righteousness shall perish from the earth.'" With him "the cause of patriotism" has "found shelter." Even the lamented Lincoln turned to him when harassed by hasty friends or misrepresented by virulent enemies, and that friendship ceased not till the rising statesman kneeled in the dying chamber where, in the moment of National victory, Wrong fainted that Right, too, was mortal. The record shows how he deserved the friendship by urging legislation calculated to inspire the army uplift our stricken people, demoralize the enemy, and intimidate foreign meddlesome powers.

Thus in public. But there is a more private "refuge," whose only condition of admission is that the "left hand" shall never "know." Those private benefactions are recorded above; and God knows that many sick, wounded and imprisoned, some still on earth, and some, alas! beneath it, cause not yet to call him blessed.

The sainted Doctor's promised "eloquence and influence" have rewarded the pure youth and devoted man. That influence served to stay his "doubtful" district in that doubtful State amid those darkly-doubtful days, and public policy, Congressional legislation, and National sentiment both in war and reconstruction, owe much to him. That promised eloquence which—like its itinerant shoes—can never "wear out," has attracted legislators, stirred the soldier, instructed the Lyceum, satisfied the delegation, moved even children, and enforced the claims of country and Christ. This living Chrysostom woefully confesses our history and mythology, reminding us so of Mercury, "messenger of the gods." Now we hear of him in Maine, now in New York, always in Washington during the session, now at home, now in Chicago, till, presto! once losing sight and word of him, this letter before us, scrawled at San Francisco, gravely speaks of "just starting for Puget Sound and Vancouver Island"—literally "Across the Continent"—and a perpetual ovation.

Ay, wise Doctor, "religion is the only sure and proper source." That religion gained the early adherence of Mr. Colfax, when many years ago began a Christian life, joining the Dutch Reform Church, and serving humbly and usefully as a Sunday School teacher for twelve years. The "pious passages" so frequent in his public speech, are not mere sentiment or oratorical art, for he loves to talk in private of how God rules and how distinctly and how often in our history his holy arm has been revealed; and the ascription of praise comes from a worshiping heart, reliant on God through Christ. His personal example at Washington is luminous. When twenty, he made vows of strict abstinence, which have never been broken. Liquors and wines are never used at his receptions, while Presidential dinners and diplomatic banquets are utterly powerless to abate one jot or tittle of his firmness. Many well remember his late speech at the Congressional temperance meeting, and how he banished the sale of liquor from all parts of the Capitol within his jurisdiction.

The home-testage a severe one for most men. How he endures this the writer has already recorded in the North-Western:

"On last Wednesday, August 1, 1866, Hon. the Speaker, Schuyler Colfax, reached his home at South Bend, Indiana, where he was greeted in good old-fashioned Hoosier style by earnest, loyal political and personal friends. These, with heartfelt unanimity, seemed to share a common spirit of enthusiasm. When the morning train reached Laporte and South Bend, crowds were in waiting. At the depot of the latter place were old patriarchs who knew 'our boy Schuyler,' middle-aged men whom he had grandfully distanced in the race of life, and wondering children, to whom this was a holiday, attending carriages, wagons, nondescript vehicles of all sorts, flags, banners, and bands playing 'Home, Sweet Home,' all in waiting to honor the return of a distinguished yet simple hearted citizen. Descending from the railway platform, Mr. Colfax was almost literally carried by the arms to an adjoining rostrum, where, in intense silence, the formal yet sincere and touching welcome was pronounced by Judge Wade, formerly Colonel of the Seventy-Third Indiana infantry, who, during the war, was by Mr. Colfax delivered from actual squalid horrors and impending death in Libby Prison.

"The orator, in substance, thanked Mr. Colfax in the name of his fellow-citizens for the honors he in his public life had won for them; in the name of national citizens, who feel that he is a prominent part of the trusty bulwark which shields them from public enemies; and, finally, in the name of soldiers who have learned by experience that he was patriotically, unselfishly, constantly, and unflaggingly devoted to their interests.

"The speaker closed, and for a moment we trembled for the silver-tongued statesman, who hitherto had gracefully addressed Presidents and Senates, but whose owner's heart seemed just then more ready to sit down and silently weep upon the threshold of its home, than to dictate the words who meaning it were far easier to feel. But soon the ringing sentences began to flow and the returning guest to feel literally at home. Then the shouts, and the procession through the streets, whose doors and windows fairly shone with nodding heads and bright faces. For once in our life amid all this unostentatious, spontaneous excitement of that pure inland town, we discovered a prophet having honor and enjoying love 'in his own country.' We would rather have that honor and love than the Speakership. Twice happy the man who enjoys both at the hands of the American Republic!"

Even the statesman may not prove exempt from severe affliction. He, too, hath loved and lost. In early life Mr. Colfax married a childhood friend, whose pure, kind heart and lovely life won hosts of friends for herself and husband. She died in 1863. We may not press our sketch to within the sacred precincts of domestic life and unspeakable bereavement. The welcome above quoted must have been grateful to its recipient; but we felt how much more sadly sweet it is to dream amid the memories of distant home than to revisit its ruins.

Mr. Colfax is not learned in the University sense; but he possesses great practical wisdom and a thorough self-education whose industry was foreshadowed in his early and very brief school-life. His intellect is clear, his reading wide, perceptions quick, convictions deep, and sense of duty as imperative as a voice from the sky. Honorably unselfish, unquestionably sincere, no wire-pulling trickster, no pretentious humbug whose ominence alone protects him from exposure, generous to subordinates and true to all, he deserves the love which he is sure to retain. Having obtained position as a mere incident to duty, he justly estimates the conditions of permanent success. Believing that a true man has always at hand all legitimate material, he scorns to corduroy his path to eminence with the bodies of competitors slain though fear of their honorable emulation. He will as soon decoy your child as a victim to the dissecting-room as to build for himself upon the debris of reputation ruined by his misrepresentation or undeserved calumny. A mean cowardly meanness is to him as impossible as forgery or theft. In all relations no man is more approachable, no grasp more cordial, no welcome more genuine, no laugh more hearty, no frankness more charming.

As a speaker, he is ready, seldom hesitating to replace a word or failing to touch the quick of a question, never employing anything for stage effect; but straightforward, direct, and often exquisitely elegant in image and diction, he is, in genuine sense, eloquent. His every speech is a success, and though one often wonders how he will extricate himself in the varied and often untimely calls made upon his treasury, he always closes with added wealth of gratified admirers. If George Canning was once the Cicero of the British Senate, Colfax is to-day that of the American House.

In the Chair he is suave and forbearing almost to excess, but as impartial as the opposite Congressional clock. Nothing escapes him, nothing nonplusses him. The marvel of his presiding watchfulness is equaled alone by the intuitive, rapid solution of the knotty point suddenly presented, and having neither no precedent, or, at best, but a very distant one. In every quandary the South Bend Legislature, or the Journal reporter, or the present student of Jefferson or Cushing, or all, rally to the rescue of the wondering House and still smiling Chairman. The advocate is never confused with the judge. Whom presiding, it is as difficult to remember, as when debating to forget, that he is radically a Radical.

Stinking river, in Montana, gained its repulsive title from the fact that it was once the favorite deposite for the Indian dead. Instead of burying their deceased comrades in the earth, they wrapped them in their blankets and robes, and gave them sepulchres in the forks of trees or on elevated poles, causing, as the miners say, the most "flagrant flagrance."

A correspondent at Gettysburg asked the hotel keeper how he was affected by the great battle. "The battle," replied mine host, "turned out well for Gettysburg. Huck deh in' and hotel keepin' are a bit more encouragin." It was difficult to see what Providence set us between two fires for, but on looking into our cash accounts we understand it all."

Army Supplies.

Office Purchasing and Depot Commissary of Subsistence,
FORT VANCOUVER, W. T., Sept. 5th, 1867.

SEALED PROPOSALS, IN DUPLICATE, ARE INvited at this office until 12 o'clock M. Wednesday, the 18th day of September, 1867, for furnishing the Subsistence Department with the following BEEF CATTLE, at the undermentioned Military Posts, and in quantities as follows, viz:

At CAMP WATSON, Oregon, 35,000 pounds, total net weight.

At CAMP LOGAN, Oregon, 27,000 pounds total net weight.

At CAMP CROOK, (on Rattlesnake Creek, near Camp Wright, Oregon,) 80,000 pounds total net weight.

Said Cattle to be delivered at the Posts named on or before the 20th day of September, 1867, subject to inspection, to be of good and marketable quality for beef (no Stags, Bulls, Milch Cows, or Yearlings will be accepted), and to weigh not less than 400 or more than 600 pounds net each, at the time of delivery, according to the following mode of determining said weight:

If practicable they will be weighed upon scales; from the live weight of a steer thus ascertained his net weight shall be determined by deducting 50 per cent.

If impracticable to weigh upon scales, then one or more average steers will be selected, killed and dressed in the usual manner, (necks to be cut off at the fourth vertebral joint, breasts trimmed down, shanks of fore quarters to be cut off from three to four inches above the knee joint, and of hind quarters from six to eight inches above gambrel or hock joint). The average net weight thereof (necks, shanks and kidney tallow excluded) shall be accepted as the average net weight of the herd.

Proposals may be made for either one of the deliveries, for a part of one, or for all. They must be in duplicate, and express the price in coin per net pound at which the beef will be furnished; they must also have a copy of this advertisement attached, and be accompanied with a guarantee of two responsible parties that should contract be awarded, contractor will give bonds in half the value of the cattle to be furnished by him.

Certified vouchers in duplicate will be given by the A. C. S. of the Post where the Cattle are delivered, immediately on the completion of the delivery, which will be paid at this office.

Bidders or their agents must be present at the opening of the proposals. Envelopes to be marked "Proposals for Beef Cattle," and to be addressed to the undersigned, at Fort Vancouver, W. T.

The United States reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

my3dlm PHILIP SCHAD,

"CAPITAL CITY CHRONICLE."

J. H. UPTON & A. NOLTNER, Proprietors.

ON SATURDAY, AUGUST 31, 1867, A LARGE SIZE WEEKLY PAPER, with the above title, will be issued at SALEM, OREGON.

The CHRONICLE will be devoted to Politics, News, and the development of the varied resources of the State in politics the CHRONICLE will be unflinchingly Democratic, supporting and advocating all those reforms in National and State policy, so urgently demanded at the present time by every consideration involving the weal of the American people. The necessity for a Democratic organ firmly planted at the Capital, will be at once apparent to every thinking Democrat in the State. Such a one we propose to make the CAPITAL CITY CHRONICLE, and with the State thoroughly Democratic to-day, with all prospective changes in favor of that party, there is no valid reason why the enterprise shall not prove a complete success.

While the CHRONICLE will devote ample space to the discussion of political topics, the News of the day, the Agricultural Mining, Mechanical and Manufacturing interests of the State at large will receive due attention. A twenty-eight column paper, 26x38 inches in size, will furnish ample space and enable us to present in each number an amount of reading matter equal to the importance of the interests involved. We only ask at the hands of the people that legitimate patronage which shall enable us to present a sheet in every way creditable to ourselves and the State—one which none may have the least reason to be ashamed of.

All contracts for advertising and subscription existing with the late Democratic Review will be faithfully executed by the proprietor of the CHRONICLE.

Terms of Subscription:

Single copy, one year $3 00
Five copies, one year 13 75
Ten copies, one year 25 00

And for any greater number, one year, at the rate of $2 50 each.

CARD.

DR. BARLOW J. SMITH'S WATER CURE AND Phrenological Institute, 627 Sacramento Street, San Francisco. This is the only Regular Water Cure in San Francisco, where all curable diseases are treated without drugs. Dr Smith was the first to establish a water cure on this coast, based upon the theory and practice of the New York Hydropathic College.

We have a truly healthful boarding place for men, women and children, and our prices are moderate.

The Phrenological organs plainly indicate the diseases to which any person, male or female, is predisposed.

Put this card in your hat, and when you come to San Francisco, call on Dr. Smith. He will give you consultation and a phrenological examination in regard to health. It will cost you nothing and may save you months and years of ill health and "bad luck."

Dr. Smith gives free lectures to gentlemen every Friday evening, on subjects pertaining to health, at his Phrenological Hall, 627 Sacramento Street.

Notice in Bankruptcy.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE: That on the 16th day of August, A. D. 1867, a warrant in Bankruptcy was issued against the estate of Ira F. Powers, of the city of Portland, in the county of Multnomah and State of Oregon, who has been adjudged a bankrupt, on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him, or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden in the United States Court-room, in the city of Portland, county of Multnomah, and State of Oregon, before Hon. M
